Name County Christmas Seal Chairmen

Christmas Seal Sale chairmen of Oxford County towns were announced this week by Dr Thomas A Foster, Portland, president of the Maine Tuberculosis Association, which association is currently conducting its annual campaign to support its program of tuberculosis control and general health.

Chairmen are: Andover, Mrs Beatrice Reed; Bethel, Mrs John F Howe; Buckfield, Mrs A B Hutcheson; Canton, J H Pulsifer; Denmark, Mrs Imogene Wentworth; Dixfield, Mrs Leona Grose; Fryeburg, Mrs Ann O Pike, 2nd; Greenwood, Mrs Collista Morgan; Hanover, Mrs Clement Worcester; Hiram, Mrs Violet M Adams; Hiram, Mrs Basil Gann; Lovell, Mrs Marcus Stearns; Mexico - Ridgelyville, Mrs Ada Bracy; Norway, Mrs Theresa R Stearns; Paris, Mrs Sadie L Silver; Peru, Mrs Alice Knox; Rumford, Mrs Judith Beliveau; Stoneham, Mrs Helen M Grover; Sumner, Mrs Augusta T Eastman.

In towns where chairmen are not listed, the work of the Christmas Seal Sale was done by the tuberculosis association.

"Tuberculosis is one of the most complex and costly public health problems in the United States," Dr Foster said, adding "that it is no respecter of persons. It can attack on the farm and in the small community, as well as in the city."

He pointed out that because of its communicability the lengthy illness it causes and the great cost involved to individuals and taxpayers, it is a most serious disease problem. "However," he added, "we know the cause and how to cure it and therefore with the interest and help of all people, it can be wiped out."

The association president added that 94 per cent of all contributions made for Christmas Seal campaigns in the State for local programs of health and disease control.

TEN HIGHWAY DEATHS IN MAINE LAST MONTH

Ten October highway deaths raised Maine's motor vehicle fatality total to one hundred eleven for the first ten months of 1952. This is an improvement over 1951, when one hundred twenty-five persons were killed during the same period.

Last year for a monthly basis, this represents a drop of five deaths as October's record of 11 is five less than the 16 deaths in 1951.

Six of last month's fatalities occurred in urban areas. Four were killed in urban areas. Six deaths came during hours of darkness, four during daylight hours. Among the victims were a motorist and six pedestrians. Two drivers and two passengers. Never has the fact that the very old and the very young are particularly vulnerable in traffic been brought out more forcefully than during the past month of the six pedestrian fatalities, two were seventy-nine years old, one was seventy-six, one was seven and two were five.

The pedestrian fatality picture continues to be extremely dark. With forty walking deaths already recorded this year and with November and December traditionally hazardous months for pedestrians, ahead of us 1952 seems destined to become a tragic year for those who walk on our streets and highways. In 1951 only forty-two pedestrians were killed during the entire year. When we consider that for the past three years, an average of thirteen pedestrians have been killed during the two-month period November-December, it becomes obvious that this could truly be a black year.

What can we do about it? As drivers, we can recognize the pedestrian danger, and we can gear our driving to meet the situation. We must be constantly alert for walkers, and we must especially caution during hours of dusk and darkness. One specific driver fault has been responsible for a number of pedestrian accidents, the failure of drivers to dim lights for oncoming cars. This has temporarily blinded the other driver and has resulted in his being unable to see the pedestrian in time to avoid him. As for pedestrians, walking on the right hand side of the road and crossing at intersections lead the list of deadly practices.

We must all cooperate if we are to reduce this shameful waste of life. Let John deWinter, Director, Division of Traffic and Safety, Maine State Police.

QUEBEC MAN INJURED WHEN CAR OVERTURNS AT UPTON

Camille Plourde, 19, of Riviere, Que., suffered severe head and chest injuries Saturday morning when the car in which he was a back seat passenger left the road and rolled over him. He was taken by ambulance to the Rumford hospital.

The accident occurred opposite the Abbott House in Upton village. The car was driven by Joseph Foclin, Jr., of Exeter, N. H. His mother, Mrs Irene Fortin, who was riding in the front seat, suffered cuts and bruises.

Man Dies In Overturned Car In Pond

Maurice Churchill, 29, of Portland met death Saturday afternoon when his car left the road and plunged into the water between the highway and railroad east of the Locke Mills picnic area on Route 26. Previous to the accident Churchill's car had sideswiped a car driven by Mrs George Hunter of Fryeburg, losing a front wheel in the contact. With Mrs Hunter were her son, Carl, and Arthur Burton of Bryant Pond.

The car in the pond was discovered some time after the crash by Trooper Lawrence Sanders of Bethel who traced the tracks of the Churchill car some 250 feet before it left the road at a gap in the guard fence. The car was overturned in about five feet of water.

It was reported that previously Churchill had eluded Deputy Sheriff of Bryant Pond while traveling at excessive speed. Last month Churchill lost his license after a drunken driving conviction.

Survivors include his father, Forest Churchill, of Albany.

VETERANS CLAIMING

BENEFITS UNDER TITLE IV MUST SHOW DISCHARGE AND W-2 FORMS

Veterans, claiming benefits under Title IV of the Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act of 1952, are coming to the Employment Office without any proof of their entitlement to such benefits.

All veterans when filing for benefits under this Act, should bring their discharge papers and all W-2 Forms covering this period of employment should also be presented to the Employment Office.

The sixteen Local Offices of the Maine Employment Security Commission will gladly assist veterans to receive the maximum amount of benefits to which they are legitimately entitled but cannot make such a determination without the necessary supporting information contained in the discharge and the W-2 Forms.

Good For The Country

Congressman William Mills, of Arkansas' 5th District, addressed our citizens last week and he put his finger on an economic problem which could cause great hardship, the problem of unemployment when the huge government expenditures for armaments slacken off. He is one of the few informed Congressmen on fiscal affairs due to his long service on the House Ways and Means Committee. He frankly said he didn't have a quick and easy answer to offer for the problem.

Remember in 1954, Congressman Mills observed, a substantial portion of the national steel production which was going into armaments and available for civilian use, and he expected the civilian market would not have sufficient demand to keep the steel mills operating at full capacity as they are now doing. "That some of the steel mills will be closed or cut their production to one-third of normal," he said, "is a possibility which is being spread by other means of the news." He said the Congress must act.

Steel for Armaments

The production of steel for armaments is a big business. It is a business which has been going on for many years. It is a business which has been going on for many years. It is a business which has been going on for many years.

Need Gradual Reduction

We are all aware of the fact that the steel industry is a big business. It is a business which has been going on for many years. It is a business which has been going on for many years. It is a business which has been going on for many years.

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable From Local Welfare

As often happens with a candidate who has a very large personal following which cuts across party lines, General Eisenhower ran well ahead of the rest of the GOP ticket in most areas. In one or two cases, he carried states in which associates were defeated in their own campaigns for office — the most notable example being the failure of Henry Cabot Lodge, who was an original Eisenhower man and a top advisor from beginning to end, to win re-election to the Senate. Even so, the General's pulling power was so great that he did far better than almost anyone expected in carrying other Republicans into national office.

It was generally believed that if Eisenhower were elected, the GOP would gain control of the House, and that has happened. It did not seem reasonable, however, that they would get the upper hand in the Senate, mainly for the reason that more Republican Senators had to make the race this year than did Democrats, and many of the contested Democratic seats were considered safe. Yet the Republicans now have an official 49-47 edge in the Senate, and the Democrats are in a most exclusive gentleman's club on earth.

One potentially important qualification must be made here. It stems from the curious case of Senator Morse of Oregon. Morse was an early Eisenhower booster, but near the end of the campaign he announced his opposition to the General and spoke for Stevenson. After the election he went back to his old party and was elected to the Senate. He has said that the will here is to call himself an "Independent Republican" — a bit of a contradiction, since the Independent has no legal status in Oregon. If Morse goes the way in his defection from the party, it will be a political assassination, and the Senate will be organized 49-48 the will here.

Somehow the situation is not so simple. The fact is that the will here is to call himself an "Independent Republican" — a bit of a contradiction, since the Independent has no legal status in Oregon. If Morse goes the way in his defection from the party, it will be a political assassination, and the Senate will be organized 49-48 the will here.

GRASS ROOTS OPINION

Salt Lake City, Utah, December 1. — The Utah Tax Commission reports that the total assessed value of all taxable property in Utah will run just about a billion dollars for 1952. The national debt at the latest account was 263 billion dollars. On a per capita basis, Utah's share of the Federal debt is about $1,227,200,000. In other words, the people of Utah are in hook to a point 25 per cent greater than the total assessed value of all the taxable property of the state.

By LITTLE HULL

WOULD YOU like to know how much a billion dollars is? The city of Butte, Montana, is the largest in that state. Population in 1940 was 27,081. It is built on "the richest hill in the world." It is served by four great railroads and boasts a magnificent airport.

The first mineral discovery was in 1864 when gold was found. Later came the discovery of silver ores, and in 1882 the production of copper on a large scale was begun. By 1940 over 11½ billion pounds of copper had been produced besides 400 million pounds of lead, almost three billion pounds of zinc, nearly two million ounces of gold and over half a million ounces of silver.

You might think this vast production could take care of the 250 odd billion dollar debt run up almost entirely by the New and Fair Deals of Roosevelt and Truman. You might think the money crazy Fair Deal mob were only spending the income from a few of our natural resources such as the Butte copper mines. Well you would be mistaken. Butte produced, between 1864 and 1940, ores to the total value of $2,333,611,391, not quite enough to pay for one after-breakfast splurge of the frugal Harry Truman.

It is pretty safe to say that if this "money-pincher" had remained in office for another four years, not even the vast resources which this country still possesses would be sufficient to pay off the debt with which he would have saddled us by 1956.

We wonder if the New Deal bosses under Truman have any idea of the extent of our actual resources. If they understand that they can be used up sometime, or if they care about what happens at that time, let us hope that the new breed will sweep the money-changers right out of the city of Washington.

THE AMERICAN WAY

Farmers Can Break Labor Monopoly

by DeWitt Emery

DeWitt Emery

EDITOR'S NOTE: DeWitt Emery is president of the National Small Business Men's Association.

Fifty years ago the farmers realized that the prices they paid for gasoline and many manufactured products depended not on competition but rather upon the whims of a few men who had certain production monopolies.

Organized agriculture fought monopolies in industry and commerce and were successful in getting the anti-trust laws enacted. At that time labor unions were largely "trade" unions. Unlike the present industry-wide industrial unions they did not have a monopoly over an entire industry, such as the steel industry, the oil industry, coal mining, transportation, communication and what have you. Because of their limited scope and power at the time the anti-trust laws were put on the books, labor unions were exempted from the provisions of these laws.

The intervening fifty years have brought many changes, one of the most significant being the development of the industrial union and the resulting industry-wide bargaining which puts an entire industry at the mercy of the boss of the union representing that industry.

In the recent difficulty in the steel industry, Phil Murray, head of the Steel Workers' Union, gave a very clear demonstration of his absolute domination and control of the industry. The industry refused to accept the recommendations of a government board and Murray called a strike closing every steel plant in the country except Weirton which has an independent union.

In a few days Secretary of Commerce Sawyer, acting under orders from the President, seized the steel mills and Murray told the men to go back to work, which they did immediately. A short time later a federal judge handed down a decision which the labor boss didn't like and in a matter of a few hours Murray again had every steel mill, except Weirton, shut down. This time they stayed down for fifty-five days, notwithstanding the crying need for steel to supply our boys fighting in Korea.

Other union bosses, notably John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers, have the same absolute control over the industries their unions represent as Murray had over the steel industry.

DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

Start a New Project

FROM 18 YEARS OF AGE to 34 Ray E. White, Torrington, Conn., had no worries important enough to remember.

Worries were like debts, the big ones he couldn't do anything about, and the little ones he could ignore.

In 1942, however, he hit the lowest ebb he ever expects to hit. There were a lot of reasons for it, business and family health. His mind was full of fantasies—mushy, cloudy, nebulous things. Buildings, automobiles, anything material seemed unreal; the stars seemed to be peculiar things.

His wife maneuvered him to a doctor who was a very skillful man. He gave Ray very positive statements of what was not wrong with him, put him on a strict diet which kept his mind so occupied he had no time to worry.

He went to the Y.M.C.A. and learned to bag punch, got enthusiastic about it, even put on a couple of exhibitions. Also he went in for a little boxing and swimming.

He literally had to force himself to go to the "Y," using sheer will-power to drag himself over there. But he always went home like a raging bulldog.

Now when an occasion arises that might give him cause for worry, he just starts a new project.

Industry Is More Extensive, More

far-reaching and much more dangerous to the national welfare than any big business monopoly ever was. The labor union monopoly must be broken up unless the American people are willing to have the labor bosses take over and run the country.

What can be done to protect 150 million Americans against the possible misuse by a few men of the power to paralyze this great nation?

Surely the industrial leaders and their manufacturers' associations have foreseen this danger. Why haven't they secured the passage of laws to properly safeguard the public interest?

The answer, I believe, is that the industrialists were the original monopolists and some of them would be again if given half a chance. They couldn't, therefore, approach Congress with clean hands and any fight they might lead to correct this situation would be doomed to failure before it got started.

On the other hand, the farmers record on monopoly is clear and consistent. They have fought the dangers inherent in monopolies intelligently and consistently for more than fifty years. They know that a manufacturing monopoly, whether controlled by manufacturer or by union labor bosses can improperly raise the price of the things they buy or shut off the supply.

What's needed then is for organized agriculture to spearhead a drive to have Congress amend the Taft-Hartley Act to outlaw industrial-wide bargaining and amend the anti-trust laws to make labor combinations in restraint of trade unlawful.

Almost the minute such an effort is started, a large majority of the small business men in the country will lend their support and between them these two groups, the farmers and the small business men, wouldn't have too much difficulty in persuading Congress to pass the necessary amendments.

The combined cash value of all the articles made or raised by Maine 4-H club members in 1951 is estimated at nearly half a million dollars. However, the development of character and skill in Maine's young people is much more important benefit of 4-H club work.

What's needed then is for organized agriculture to spearhead a drive to have Congress amend the Taft-Hartley Act to outlaw industrial-wide bargaining and amend the anti-trust laws to make labor combinations in restraint of trade unlawful.

V. A. NEWS LETTER

Maine veterans who served on active duty with the armed forces anywhere in the world since June 27, 1950, have until August 30, 1954, to start to use the education and training benefits available to them under the Korean GI Bill.

Those servicemen still on active duty will have two years after the date of their discharge in which to commence training, according to M. L. Stoddard, manager of the Veterans Administration Center, Togus, Maine.

Stoddard said that a veteran who has started in time and continues on after his discharge for entering training must generally pursue his training continuously until it is completed.

The veteran has the right, however, to suspend training for periods of not more than twelve consecutive months. Longer periods of interruption will be permitted only if VA finds that the suspension was due to reasons beyond his control.

Prospective veteran trainees were advised by Stoddard that no training under the new GI Bill may be given beyond seven years after the veteran's discharge. Likewise, for persons still in the service on the date the present emergency comes to an end, the seven years will be measured from that date.

For Korean GI's now in training VA will make training allowance payments retroactive only to August 20, 1952, Stoddard added.

Maine has led the nation for many years in the percentage of 4-H club projects completed.

POWER OF THE IMAGINATION

Writing of the New York World-Telegram-Sun, James Daniel describes the world's "driest dam." This interesting edifice, says Mr. Daniel, was built at Cherry Creek, Colorado, by the Army Engineers to catch a flood that might come once in a century. In other times, the creek often contains barely enough water for wading. But the dam stands there waterless—an earthenfill almost three miles long, 140 feet high, complete with masonry and concrete control towers, spillways, dam keeper's quarters, etc. It cost the taxpayers the neat sum of $15,000,000, which might strike some of us as quite a lot of money to pay for a dam which holds no water and perhaps never will.

The dam, it seems, is a trophy of the fight between the Army Engineers and the Bureau of Reclamation to determine of these eager-beaver Federal agencies was going to build all the dams in the Mississippi Basin, of which Cherry Creek is a tiny part. According to Mr. Daniel, the army won by "outdoing the reclamation boys in power of the imagination."

This may be an exceptional example of the waste which is part and parcel of the dam building craze. Even so, it is typical of the fact that, if the interested Federal bureaus have their way, there is hardly a watercourse in the country which won't be dammed, entirely regardless of the need, and entirely regardless of the cost. And this, in turn, is part and parcel of the campaign to create a Federal monopoly of our waterpower and of everything which goes with it, including land and electricity. The Cherry Creek dam symbolizes the "drunken-sailor" philosophy which has been spending the country toward bankruptcy and socialism.

EASY DOES IT

PLAN TO GO on a special beauty schedule so you'll be in tip top shape for the holidays. If you start now, many problems can be solved within a short time.

Give yourself or get a permanent as well as a new hair style so that it can soften and look lovely for your big dates. A few days or even a week will teach you how to care for your hair style so that you'll know how to set and wear it most effectively.

Cold weather may have chapped your skin and made it look dry, flaky and rough. For comfort as well as beauty, use lotions on the vital spots such as hands, elbows, face, neck and knees.

Views and Counterviews

IN THE HANDS of the General Assembly rests the fate of armistice negotiations in Korea, depending upon this question: Does international law require the automatic return of prisoners of war after an armistice, or can they decide for themselves whether they want to go back? Andrei Vishinsky for the Reds is demanding forced repatriation; Dean Acheson for the United States is demanding voluntary.

U.S. ARGUMENT

Admittedly, previous armistice agreements and conventions have provided that all prisoners without exception be repatriated. But these provisions, with others regarding food and medical care provided by the detaining power, are to benefit the prisoners themselves. So if any prisoner decides that it suits his welfare better to refuse to go back, he should not be forced.

The struggle is being waged for human rights, not to enforce diplomatic courtesy. We claim to be fighting for freedom and charge our enemy with oppression. If we have converted any enemy soldiers to our ideas, to return them to the mercy of their former commanders would be sheer perfidy. We contend many of them fought for Communism under duress and we freed them—how will other peoples promised freedom by us regard our intentions if we return the prisoners to their slave drivers?

How can Russia demand immediate repatriation when the Soviet still holds thousands of Japanese and German prisoners?

SOVIET ARGUMENT

The armistice agreements with Germany and Japan, plus the conventions concerning the treatment of prisoners of war, especially the Geneva convention of 1949, make provisions for the return of prisoners immediately after the signature of armistice. These treaties and conventions make no provisions for any prisoner unwilling to be repatriated.

The fact that the Soviet Union has agreed to voluntary repatriation in other instances establishes no good precedent. These instances occurred in early days when the Soviet was too weak to protest and to uphold the agreements of the conventions.

The very fact that these agreements were specific in offering voluntary repatriation proves that the general rule of international law is opposite—that is, it requires immediate and forced repatriation. Else, to mention the exceptions would have been unnecessary. However, the Soviet Union, should it see the justice of voluntary repatriation in specific cases, still is "generous."

MAINE FIELD CORN SEED GOES TO BELGIUM

Maine seed corn has found its way to Belgium. It was requested by George E. Lord, associate of the Maine Extension Service, who is spending nine months in Europe helping increase food production. Lord wrote Russell M. Bailey, plant breeder for the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station, and Bailey sent him four samples of the best varieties.

IRRIGATION SCHOOL COMING

Maine's first two-day school on irrigation will be held at the University of Maine, Tuesday and Wednesday, December 2 and 3. Instructors at the school will be Richard H. Hopkins, Frank W. Pellet, and Roland A. Struchtemeyer, all of the department of Agricultural Engineering; Joseph M. Trevelyan, professor of geology; Marjorie R. Warner, Extension engineer; and R. H. Stone of the Soil Conservation Service. Farmers who already have irrigation systems will also take part in the discussions. Results from the use of irrigation during the dry summer just past show the value of irrigation on many farms.

Taking soil tests on Maine farms and having them tested by the Maine Experiment Station pays dividends. Extension Service crops specialists make recommendations based on the test results which help farmers to know how much fertilizer and lime to apply.

"I REMEMBER" BY THE OLDTIMERS

From E. L. Sporleder, Okmulgee, Okla.: I remember when pipe organs were operated by a man or boy back of the organ working a long pole up and down to keep enough wind in the organ to make music. One Sunday the music stopped, but the choir kept singing and the organist kept playing until the music came on again. The man at the pole had dropped off to sleep.

From D. P. Webster, Kansas City: I remember when a person died the church bell would toll out the age of the deceased, one toll for each year. Also, when the remains were leaving the church, the bell would toll until the remains were put to rest.

From Mrs. Eola Burdick, Concord, Pa.: I remember the cutter rides my brother and I took with our parents cuddled underneath the big buffalo robe. We had frequent flip-flops in the deep snow, but the inevitable soapstone helped to thaw our feet out again. I miss the sleighbells more than that old heavy brown veil Mother made me wear.

Mrs. Mabel Widdle, Somerset, Ky.: I remember when my mother and dad bought apples at 10 cents a bushel—a whole wagonload. They would invite the neighbors in to prepare the apples for drying in the sun, then clear one room and dance the old square dance until midnight.

From Dr. Ernest E. Smith, Sylva, N.C.: I remember when an engineer or fireman was killed in a wreck, the engine was draped in mourning for a certain length of time.

From Mrs. Lucetta C. Mills, Martinsville, Ill.: When summer came we would put large scaffolds of apples and peaches out to dry by the hot sunshine. I remember when bananas were first put on sale in this locality. I have seen my mother bake corn pone in the dutch oven heated by the hot ashes and coals from the fire brought out on the stove hearth in front.

From H. Floyd Craig, Mt. Pleasant, Ohio: I remember when the sugar house was in the middle of the big sugar maple woods. The neighbors gathered for a get-together and "sugaring-off" at the sugar house. They brought out the flat-top wagon and all piled on but it took two teams of big farm horses to pull us through the March roads.

From E. E. Meredith, Fairmont, W. Va.: I remember when as evening's recreation was sewing carpet rags and winding them as balls.

From Mrs. Bertha Williams, Ft. Recovery, Ohio: I remember tramping fleeces in the washbasin until they were white as cotton. Then they were carded, spun, dyed and knit.

From Mrs. Anna Barry, Van Wert, Ohio: I remember when my mother would make bread—always a large dishpan full when it raised. It was usually enough to last about four days for a family of eight. About 10 loaves.

It's a Lark to Park This Way

Since many motorists find parking is their biggest driving difficulty, the Orange Disc, Gulf Oil house magazine, recently conducted street tests to find the most practical method. As a result, the editors recommend the steps below, claiming they will put even new drivers safely in to the curb in "one pass."

PULL UP PARALLEL to the car ahead of the parking space, preferably one foot and NOT MORE THAN TWO FEET away from it (check distance through your right door window). Stop when rear bumper of car is about even. Make sure road is clear to rear.

BACK UP SLOWLY, turning steering wheel as far right as possible. This swings car into parking space at about a 45° angle. When front seat is even with the other car's rear bumper (position above), straighten front wheels, still backing slowly.

AS YOUR RIGHT FRONT WHEEL comes opposite the other car's rear wheels, start turning steering wheel to left. When clear of other car's rear bumper, quickly complete turn of steering wheel to left as far as it will go. Back slowly as far as necessary to put your car "in" without hitting car to rear.

THIS SHOULD ALIGN YOU with curb in parking position. If not, straighten wheels and pull forward until aligned. Stop in center of space. Any difficulty with the method can usually be cleared up by a few minutes trial on a quiet street where the motorist can dismount and check his position against these diagrams.

TO HOLD THANKSGIVING SERVICE AT THOMPSON HOME

On Thanksgiving Day a service of the Christian Science Society will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Thompson, Vernon St., at 10:30 a.m.

The service will open with the singing of Hymn 374 "We thank Thee and we bless Thee, O Father of us all." "The First Reader will then read the Thanksgiving Proclamation issued by the Governor of the State of Maine and a Scriptural Selection taken from the eleventh and twelfth chapters of John's Gospel.

Following this the congregation will be requested to join in a few moments of silent prayer, which will be immediately followed by the audible repetition of the Lord's Prayer with its spiritual interpretation as given in the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.

Hymn 10 "All power is given unto our Lord" will continue the order of service. Appropriate to the occasion the subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Thanksgiving," the Golden Text being from Psalms "O sing unto the Lord a new song: sing unto the Lord, all the earth" (Psalms 96:1).

One of the Scriptural selections contained in the Lesson-Sermon will be from First Chronicles 17: "The Lord is the greatest, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty, for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine; there is nothing that can be said above all: both riches and honor come of thee, and thou reignest over all: and in thine hand is power and might, and in thine hand it is to make great, and to give strength unto all: now therefore, our God, we thank thee, and praise thy glorious name."

Correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" will include these selections: "Mind is the grand creative and there can be no power except that which is derived from Mind. If Mind was first chronologically is first potentially, and must be first eternally, then give to Mind the glory, honor, dominion, and power everlasting due its holy name." (Page 143, 26-31).

After a solo entitled "Plentitude" brief testimonies will be given by members of the congregation, expressing gratitude for healing, regeneration and spiritual growth as a result of the application of the teachings of Christian Science.

In closing the congregation will join in singing Hymn No. 150 in the Christian Science Hymnal "In mercy in goodness how great is our King" after which the First Reader will read the Scientific Statement of Being from the Christian Science textbook (page 458) and the correlative Scripture according to I John 3: 1-3. The service will conclude by a benediction from Hebrews.

Similar services in observance of Thanksgiving Day will be held in The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, and its Branches throughout the United States, Canada, and in many other parts of the world.

The objectionable odor and raw flavor of onion is reduced when a dash of sugar is added to the cooking water.

It was not until a cigaret manufacturer started adding about ten per cent sugar to tobacco that cigarets became popular. In curing tobacco, almost all of the native sugar in the leaf is removed. The job that sugar does in tobacco is to enhance moisture and serve as combustible material. In the process, it blends proteins and chemicals in tobacco as they burn so that a mild and pleasant acid smoke can be drawn into the mouth. At the light end, the smoke is alkaline, harsh and irritating.

The LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

A gimmick that is a blot on our nation's escutcheon and which is also one of the accessories to Govt. that adds to the postponing of that hoped-for day when the tax man will have a heart, is "matching money." In matching dimes it is a 50-50 chance—but with "matching money" where the Govt. runs the deal, look out. The deal sounds so sweet—the temptation of free dinero is so great—that cities and towns and lunch clubs succumb, can't pass up something that is half free even though such matching money is for a swimming pool when the town already has a grand ocean beach or a lake shore at its doorstep.

This matching money fans out to include electric line extensions and help to power stations where there is already a private outfit standing ready to use its own cash to do the job, and the private outfit's rates are policed and supervised by an already existing state commission.

To get matching dinero you put one buck and the Govt. puts up one buck. But the buck the Govt. puts up it is your cash in the first place—the Govt. took it out of your jeans on last March 15th. There is the gimmick folks "sugar coated free, matching dinero." Sounds quite a little like checkered suit and 3 shell stuff. Eh? Wot? as we say here around the Grove.

Yours with the low down, JO SERREA

Thursday, November 27

Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits. (Psalm 103:2) Read Psalm 103:1-3 or Timothy 2:1-8.

At mealtime we children, of us, often dipped too heavily from the serving dish. Father would give us a reminder by saying, "Look at your plate."

This is wise counsel for us who pray. Instead of asking God for more and more, we should take note of what we already have. There is wisdom in the psalmist's reminder, "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits." The number of benefits are limitless, but among them are the beauty and fruitfulness of the out-of-doors, the love and companionship of family and friends, the functioning of the marvelous mechanism of our bodies, and soul redemption through Christ.

We have today many benefits which were unknown to the psalmist. Consider the advance in the fields of medicine, scientific research, transportation, and communication. How much more should we sing today, "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits!"

Prayer

Thy blessings to us, our Father, are as the stars of the heavens and the sands of the sea. In return we have only ourselves to give. Help us this day, and in the days to come, to give ourselves wholeheartedly to serve others in Thy name and thus to serve Thee. In the spirit of Christ we pray, Amen.

Thought For The Day

In prayer and service I will give thanks to God.

Rev. Robert W. Harper
Jesus Commissioned the Twelve.
Lesson: Matthew 10: 1; 3-7, 24-27, 34-39.

Golden Text: Matthew 10: 39.
MEN should be clothed with authority when they go out to represent a great cause. In the case of the disciples, there was added to the authority of truth they were to declare the word of the Master, giving them authority over evil spirits and power to heal all manner of sickness.

But healing was not to be their only work. They were to preach the gospel of the kingdom and call upon men to repent.

Jesus did not hide from the disciples the difficulties they would encounter. Rather did he emphasize them. But he told them they would be in the same class with himself, and he promised them that things hard at first to understand would be revealed by and by.

Though Jesus told the disciples he had not come to send peace on earth but rather conflict and division, he assured them they might enjoy a peace to be won by their own efforts. This peace would not be a mere absence of struggle but it would come in the joy and satisfaction that they might have in overcoming.

Then the Lord gave the great paradox that giving is life, withholding is death. We in this day are divinely commissioned to labor for the Master; let us lose ourselves in unselfish service.

Eldorado, Kansas, Times: "When a government agency like the wage stabilization board ratified wage boosts, or initiates some of its own—as has occurred in many instances over recent years—all is lovely on the labor front and the goose hangs high. But when such a bureau honestly feels that a proposed advance is too high, all things considered in the economic picture, and authorizes a reduction—then, South Gehenna is to pay."

From The Thomaston, Ga., Times:
Riley Summers tells of a friend of his on the mite stinging side. "He had some hogs and a fellow told him if he would pen them up they would fatten in a shorter time. Old Stingy thought it over and finally commented 'time don't mean nothing to a hog'."

From The Indio, Calif., News:
Coachella Valley and San Jacinto area game wardens may have regrets for the hunter who mistakably shot two houses, a school and a maroon convertible, but Coachella's heart bleeds for the Los Angeles golfer who holed out in one on the wrong green.

From The Woodford County Journal, Eureka, Ill.:
The latest report on crime, published by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, is not reassuring. Major crimes were 6.4 per cent more numerous in the first half of 1952 than in 1951. The increases were even larger in robbery, auto thefts, and burglary.

Crime increased in rural areas just as much as in cities.
The increase is not due to laxity in law enforcement. The record shows that the police find a substantial percentage of those who are guilty, and that the courts convict 72 per cent of those who are brought to trial.

The ultimate weapon against crime is not law enforcement; it is character building in the home, the school and the church. The increase in crime rates indicate a strong need for greater effort by these institutions.

From The Weonon, Ill., Index:
One of our exchanges carried the following ad recently: "The man who picked up my wallet on Walnut street was recognized. He is requested to return it."
The next issue carried this reply: "The recognized man who picked up the wallet requests the loser to call and get it."

From The Winfield, Kans., Courier:
I am a criminal!

I am a criminal because I do the following things:
When I go into a food store I handle the fruits and vegetables and sample a peach, apple, plum, grapes, or maybe tick one in my pocket or purse. That's pretty larceny.

When I attend a club meeting I repeat a lurid story I have heard about someone but which I couldn't prove. If it isn't true it is slander.

If I am walking or driving down the street and the traffic light is against me, I may walk right against a red light. Or, if I am driving I may "jump" a green light before the red comes on. Or if I am almost to the intersection and the red light changes I may just turn my head so I don't see it. That's violating a traffic and safety regulation.

IN TEN YEARS of wrangling dudes in Yellowstone Park, I'd got used to tough trips, but the time I got stuck with Lord and Lady Cavendish for three whole weeks was sure a corker. There was only one comfort. At the end of it, it ought to net me in tips anywhere from five to twenty.

Englishmen weren't noted for being lavish. I figured I'd be lucky if I got a sawbuck.

Most everything that could happen did. In a storm we came to a rockslide across the road. I had to chop down trees to make a new road around it. Once a lead horse went a lurch, and we were so doped up we couldn't make the 'backstop. Had to camp out over night. No grub. No nothing.

They didn't complain much. Lord Cavendish said, "I've never slept in a tallyho. Rather sporting!" And the only objection the lady made was, "I could do with a mug of tea!"

If they hadn't been such nice folks, I couldn't have held in like I did. When a rear wheel caved in, though, about 20 miles out of Moida, I was getting real out of sorts. I thought his highness better make that tip good and big.

I had to prop up the corner of the coach with a pole and drag it lopsided with only three wheels the rest of the way. The road was pretty rutty, but much more than two wagon tracks.

I said to Lady Cavendish, "It's going to be rough, ma'am. You'd better mount the right wheelhorse. He's not much for riding but he's dependable. The gent can ride up front with me."

She hooked her knee around the harness with her skirt spread out like side-saddle, and we managed to make it on in to town before the rain.

While the blacksmith was fixing one up a wheel, I waited in the Highball Saloon. I kept watching for Cavendish out of the tail of my eye, for he hadn't really let me go yet. I knew the tip would be coming, but with Englishmen you couldn't rush it.

He and Lady Cavendish fooled around in the general store as if they had all day. I got a little nervous when I heard the train tootin' down the track, so I moped over to the depot platform.

Lord Cavendish handed me a package and said, "Buck, here are some cigars. We appreciate your services."

Lady Cavendish murmured, "So courteous, so thoughtful!"

I stammered some sort of thanks, boiling madder by the minute. Cigars! And I didn't even smoke!

I threw the box up on the front seat of the stagecoach, not caring whether it bounced off or not.

It was a long ride back to Henry's Lake, and I cursed the whole English tribe all the way. I should have made it in by noon, but that lead horse went lame again, and it was nearer midnight when I pulled up at the messhouse.

The barndog, waiting with a lantern and a sour look, grumbled, "You sure took your time a-camin'." "I sure want to turn in sometime tonight!"

I blew up then and told him off with all the words I hadn't been able to use in front of Lady Cavendish.

I turned down some and told him, "That box of cigars on the driver's seat, you can have 'em" and went inside a smoking.

Pretty soon he came in too, with the open cigar box in his hand. "Sure you don't want these, Buck?"

"Now, don't bother me with 'em!" I growled. "I don't smoke!" Then I told him what all Englishmen were.

"I don't know," he shook his head. "Better take a look!"

He shoved the box under my nose so I couldn't help but see it. Lying on top of the cigars was a nice new hundred dollar bill!

COLUMBIA RECORDS has polled eight of its leading artists for their own choices to compile a new disc anthology titled "This Is My Best". Each selection, previously released on single discs, has attained hit status and acquired special significance for the recording artist. For ex-band singer Doris Day, who had just completed her first film, "Romance on the High Seas," the session at which she recorded the movie song, "It's Magic," was a memorable one. "Just plain magic!" The song's writers, Sammy Cahn and Jule Styne, brought Doris to the attention of movie producer Michael Curtiz, who gave Doris her first motion picture assignment.

Harry James says his audiences have made "You Made Me Love You" just about his best recording. "Though this tune is an 'oldie' it's still one of our most requested numbers," he says. Benny Goodman, reluctant to choose a single "best" record, nominates as the likeliest candidate "Jersey Bounce."

OTHERS SAY:

"Harbor Lights" was always one of Sammy Kaye's special favorites. The "Swing and Sway" man's arrangement, one of the first he recorded for Columbia, was "a summation of what we've tried to do with our orchestra... it's as if just this once everything we hoped for on a record came out right!"

Frank Sinatra likes Rodgers and Hammerstein's "You'll Never Walk Alone" because, although "it's a deceptively simple song... it says a lot... what is said helped a lot of people... for the combination of the song itself and the way I sang it... this is my best."

With only a two-and-a-half year recording career behind him young Guy Mitchell thought it was "a little early for me to say 'This is my best,' but admitted that so far he likes "My Heart Goes for You." Everything was "right" on the Ellington band's recording of "I Let a Song Go Out of My Heart" according to composer-conductor Duke

Ladles, you probably pay careful attention to how your child is dressed when he goes out to play this brisk November. But do you pay attention to where he plays? We hope it's not in the street, because our Maine State Police tell us that many of the child pedestrians who have been killed were playing in the street.

IRRIGATION SHORT COURSE TO BE HELD AT ORONO

Maine farmers, dealers, manufacturers' representatives, county agents, and others will attend the first Irrigation Short Course at the University of Maine next week Tuesday and Wednesday, Dec. 2 and 3. Irrigation of potatoes, blueberries, pasture, sweet corn, snap beans, and other crops will be discussed. Speakers include farmers, University scientists, dealers, and a representative of the Soil Conservation Service. Everyone's welcome and there's no registration fee.

STUDY BRONCHITIS IMMUNITY

Chickens vaccinated for bronchitis at five to ten weeks old in experiments at the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station maintained solid immunity to the disease for more than a year.

The birds were given doses of bronchitis 58 weeks after they were vaccinated but didn't pick up the disease, according to members of the Experiment Station research team that conducted the test.

There was evidence, however, that birds vaccinated at nine weeks of age might have a higher degree of immunity, according to the research workers. The immunity in these birds was measured by antibodies in the blood.

Research in bronchitis immunity is one of several experiments in poultry husbandry and disease immunity being conducted at the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station.

DIET DEFICIENCIES DISCOVERED

Maine school children are deficient in two essential vitamins and need more iron and protein in their diets, according to Dr. Mary M. Clayton, nutritionist at the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station.

The vitamins are A and C, both essential to health both easily obtained, according to Doctor Clayton.

The shortages were revealed in a recent study of 780 Maine junior high students from Bangor, Bucksport, Newport, and Skowhegan. Blood samples and physical examinations were used in making the study.

Almost two-thirds of the boys and one-half of the girls showed insufficient vitamin C in their diets, according to Dr. Clayton, although no acute scurvy was found.

The nutritionist advises eating more citrus fruits and tomatoes of their juices, or lightly cooked cabbage, spinach, rutabagas, or strawberries. She said drink 1/2 to a whole eight-ounce glass of orange juice each morning would provide enough vitamin C each day.

Although the study revealed that there is very little severe anemia among Maine students, about one-tenth of the group had low tests.

Anemia is caused by a deficiency of iron and protein in the diet. The iron and protein help build the hemoglobin (red coloring) in the blood.

Vitamin A deficiency, Doctor Clayton said, was found in from one-third to one-half of the students had dangerously low results.

The vitamin can be obtained from butter, cream, eggs, and fish liver oil, according to Miss Clayton. It is also made in the body from carotene found in green and yellow fruits and vegetables.

The Maine Agricultural Experiment Station nutritionist advises mothers to take precautions and see that the children are getting adequate amounts of all the vitamins.

"Pack fruit in the school lunch," she said, "since it was found that the school lunches often were low in vitamin C."

Maine men once kept slaves. Proof? Here's an item from the will of Major Nicholas Shapleigh, of Kittery, for whom the present town of Shapleigh was named: "A parcel of swine 10 pounds, 4 men, 3 men one woman and one little neeger all ninety pounds—100 pounds."
